Re: Mail Delivered in Error

Dear Mr. Nash:

In March of this year, PVS Chemicals, Inc. received from your office materials addressed to Nolwood Chemical Corporation ("NCC"). On March 8, 2001, I wrote to Ms. Sheppard-Johnson of your office, informing her that the materials sent to us by your office were delivered to us in error. A copy of my 3/8/01 letter is enclosed.

Following my 3/8/01 letter, additional mailings addressed to NCC from your office were delivered to us in error. On May 29, 2001, I wrote to you, informing you that the materials sent to us by your office were delivered to us in error. A copy of my 5/29/01 letter is also enclosed.

Following my 5/29/01 letter, an additional mailing addressed to NCC from your office was delivered to us in error. On June 21, 2001, I wrote to you, informing you that the materials sent to us by your office were delivered to us in error. A copy of my 6/21/01 letter is also enclosed.

Following my 6/21/01 letter, an additional mailing addressed to NCC from your office was delivered to us in error. On July 27, 2001, I wrote to you, informing you that the materials sent to us by your office were delivered to us in error. A copy of my 7/27/01 letter is also enclosed.

Following my 7/27/01 letter, an additional mailing addressed to NCC from your office was delivered to us in error. On October 10, 2001, I wrote to you, informing you that the materials sent to us by your office were delivered to us in error. A copy of my 10/10/01 letter is also enclosed.

Following my 10/10/01 letter, an additional mailing addressed to NCC from your office was delivered to us in error. As before, we are returning that mailing to you with this letter.

As we informed your office in my 3/8/01, 5/29/01, 6/21/01, 7/27/01 and 10/10/01 letters, the last known address that we have for NCC is:
